

ST-X^T

Low leakage steel doors are designed for use in air conditioning systems, plant rooms, filter plenums, air handling units etc. If exposed to the weather the steel doors should be protected with anti-corrosion paint. The stable construction guarantees a very low leakage even with high pressure differentials. Good sound insulation is also achieved in the construction with additional acoustic treatment (X versions).